

NOTE: This practice CLOZE Test may be used for grades 4 – 8

FAMOUS PANTS

Henry Peters lived in Washington, D.C., over a 100 years ago. It was still a fairly small _____. It was not hard for _____ to walk all over the city. On his _____ he often saw the President of the United States.

Chester A. Arthur was the President in 1882. He was a big _____. He stood six _____ two inches tall. When he walked down the _____, it was hard to miss him. When he rode in his carriage, he often stuck his whiskered _____ out of the window.

When Mr. Arthur first became President, he did not move immediately into the White House. He made some _____. He made the White House _____ modern. He put in bathrooms _____ new furniture. He threw many _____ out.

Henry went to a rummage sale. A rummage sale is like a garage _____. The sale was held on the White House _____. The _____ was selling old things he did not want. _____ hoped to buy something.

Henry saw a bird cage at the sale. It once belonged to _____ whose husband was Ulysses S. Grant. _____ also saw a pair of pants.

The _____ were for a man with long legs. They had once _____ to President Lincoln. Henry bought the _____. When he grows taller, he plans to wear them to _____.

ANSWER KEY

FAMOUS PANTS

Henry Peters lived in Washington, D.C., over a 100 years ago. It was still a fairly small city. It was not hard for Henry to walk all over the city. On his walks he often saw the President of the United States.

Chester A. Arthur was the President in 1882. He was a big man. He stood six feet two inches tall. When he walked down the street, it was hard to miss him. When he rode in his carriage, he often stuck his whiskered face out of the window.

When Mr. Arthur first became President, he did not move immediately into the White House. He made some changes. He made the White House more modern. He put in bathrooms and new furniture. He threw many things out.

Henry went to a rummage sale. A rummage sale is like a garage sale. The sale was held on the White House lawn. The President was selling old things he did not want. Henry hoped to buy something.

Henry saw a bird cage at the sale. It once belonged to Mrs. Grant whose husband was Ulysses S. Grant. Henry also saw a pair of pants.

The pants were for a man with long legs. They had once belonged to President Lincoln. Henry bought the pants. When he grows taller, he plans to wear them to school.